JEFFREY R. SWEET

OFFICE AT: Buffalo

The New York State Workers' Compensation Law requires, generally, that employers of one or more employees must provide a New York State Workers' compensation Policy and a New York State Disability Benefits Policy for their employees.

Please furnish your 2006 information as requested below and mail it to the address indicated.

Note that certain employers do not need Disability Benefits coverage, but still need to provide proof of Workers Compensation coverage, for example, employers of farm laborers only, employers which are municipal entities, and employers having fewer than 30 days of NYS employment per year.
